Now that you've seen Hasbro's resculpted Vintage Boba Fett, you know that Hasbro can produce action figures that seamlessly match the original 1978-1985 line. As such, would you be interested in a continued line of vintage style sculpt to round out the original vintage line?

- ☐ Yes, I'd buy them all!
- ☐ I'd only buy OT figures not previously produced (Tarkin, Han Stormtrooper)
- ☐ I'd only buy the PT figures (TPM, AOTC, & ROTS)
- ☐ Nope, I want to look forward, not backwards.

Kenner Photo Archive: Death Squad Commander

Posted by D. Martin on May 11, 2011 at 12:18 PM CST:

Even though this figure became better known as 'Star Destroyer Commander', he was introduced to the Star Wars Generation as Death Squad Commander. It didn't take long for Kenner to reevaluate its macabre name selection and in a truly Orwellian manner 'New Speaked' it to the name 'it always was called'. And they would have gotten away with it too if it weren't for this pesky Kenner Photo Archive introduction!

Posted by D. Martin on May 10, 2011 at 12:22 PM CST:

Unlike the myriad sculpts we see in the modern line, there was only one version of Ben \(Obi-Wan\) Kenobi made in the Kenner line. And even though the figure did end up having a couple of small variations, today's addition to the Kenner Photo Archive was all the original Star Wars Generation needed to have fun during playtime.

Rumor Report: The Vintage Collection B-Wing Fighter?

Posted by Curto on May 10, 2011 at 11:27 AM CST:

A new batch of photos have surfaced over on Sandtroopers.com that show pretty strong proof of a new B-Wing Fighter vehicle, apparently coming to K-

Mart stores. The last time this vehicle was released was in 2008 as an EU "Dagger Squadron" repaint, but it's been 10 years since a movie-accurate version was released in the Power of the Jedi line.
